Objective: Continuously develop and improve the research website while expanding the collection of primary source materials for the review paper.

Tasks Completed:

1. Added new primary source research papers to the preliminary resources file, expanding our collection of relevant materials.
2. Conducted thorough analysis and evaluation of the newly acquired research papers to ensure their relevance and quality for the review paper.
3. Fixed bugs and resolved issues on the research website to ensure smooth functionality and optimal user experience.
4. Compiled a guide on how to write a review paper to assist the research team in structuring and formatting their work effectively. This will later be used as a template and a reference for our review paper.
5. Contacted the library staff of the University of Toronto to seek solutions for the paywall issues encountered, addressing one of the challenges faced in accessing academic papers.

Next Steps:

1. Expand the search for more
2. Refinement of research paper summaries and annotations to facilitate easier access and understanding for the research team.

Conclusion:

This week was focused on refining and improving various aspects of the research website, including bug fixes, enhancements to the contact page, and the creation of a guide on writing review papers. Additionally, efforts were made to expand the collection of primary source materials, and solutions were sought for challenges encountered with paywall issues by reaching out to the University of Toronto library staff. Moving forward, the focus will remain on continuous development and optimization of the website, along with addressing any remaining challenges in accessing academic papers.

Upcoming Meeting: We are expecting to meet with Dr. Mansur, the supervisor, on Friday the 23rd. The discussion content, if needed, will be updated in the log for next week.
